

We are looking for you: Marketing & Sales manager (m/f/d)

Venture Team: faCellitate

Chemovator is the business incubator of BASF. We provide a protected space to build commercial ventures from unconventional ideas. Our Venture Teams take full ownership of their idea, creatively explore their business, learn fast and pivot beyond corporate boundaries.

Our Venture Team faCellitate works on cell culture materials, which create a variety of benefits for cell culture applications in drug development, toxicological screening, stem cell technology and disease modelling. For more information, visit our website www.facellitate.com.

We are looking for a motivated and highly self-driven expert to join our journey. Are you the right one to bring our operations to life?

Your role

- You are setting up marketing strategies and campaigns in close collaboration with our Venture team
- You are responsible for new customer acquisition, product promotion and customer relations
- You support the entire sales process
- You are managing sales campaigns, virtual networking channels, conferences and fairs

You offer

- Your background is in cellular biology or biotechnology
- You have relevant experiences in the Life Science, pharma or medical environment with track record in growth marketing and high affinity to digital marketing channels
- Your communication skills are excellent (German and English), and you feel comfortable with handling suppliers and customers
- You describe yourself as a creative and hands-on person, big team player and you love to work in a changing environment of an agile start-up team
- You are an independent player, ready to travel up to 20% of your working time within Europe.

We offer

- The possibility to build with us a cutting-edge life science business from ground up
- The agility and flexibility of a start-up paired with the resources and backing of a large corporate player
- A steady interaction and dialogue with experienced experts from two worlds – corporate BASF and our wide external network
- Use the mass of experiences of your colleagues and our Entrepreneurs in Residence to develop yourself and your Venture further
- Flexible working time and mobile work as well as usual perks of a company in the start-up environment

CHEMOVATOR

- A competitive salary and a temporary employment contract
